DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.
2. The preliminary amendment filed May 2, 2002 is acknowledged.

Claim Objections

3. Claims 6-9 are objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c) as being in improper form because a multiple dependent claim can not depend from any other multiple dependent claim. See MPEP § 608.01(n). Accordingly, the claims have not been further treated on the merits.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1-3, and 6-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Shriver (the US Patent No. 4,167,740, cited by Applicant).

The Shriver reference teaches in figures 1-8 a relay antenna mast for a cellular radio telecommunications system, the mast being characterized in that it comprises: a mast stand (C) ; at least one arm (D) pivotally mounted on the mast stand (C) and carrying at least one antenna (F); and means for locking the arm in a position in which the antenna(s) is/are in a high position (figure 1); the arm (D) being suitable, when the locking means are disengaged, for being tilted about its pivot axis (36) to a position in which at least one antenna is at height enabling it to be worked on by an operative at the foot of the mast. The arm (D) extends on either side of its pivot axis (36) and carries counterweight-forming means (45) on its branch opposite from its branch carrying the antenna(s). The counterweight-forming means (45) are adjustable in mass and/or in translation along the arm (figure 2). The arm (D) carries a plurality of antennas F.

6. Claims 1- 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Tesson (the FR Patent No.2,684,127, cited by Applicant).

The Tesson reference teaches in figure 1 a relay antenna mast comprising: a mast stand (1) ; at least one arm (4) pivotally mounted on the mast stand (1) and carrying at least one antenna (9); and means for locking the arm in a position in which the antenna(s) is/are in a high position (figure 1); the arm (4) being suitable, when the locking means are disengaged, for being tilted about its pivot axis to a position in which at least one antenna is at height enabling it to be worked on by an operative at the foot of the mast. Figure 1 shows a linkage comprising two elements (7,8) fixed one to the mast stand (1) and the other to the arm, one (7,8) of the elements carrying means (6) for fixing a retaining device enabling the operative to control tilting of the arm (figure 1).

The retaining device (6) is a removable device put into place by the operative prior to releasing the locking means, and subsequently removed once the locking means have been re-engaged after work has been carried out. The arm (4) carries a plurality of antennas 9.

7. Claims 1 and 8-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Bond (the US Patent No. 4,151,534, cited by Applicant).

The Bond reference teaches in figure 1 a relay antenna mast for a cellular radio telecommunications system, the mast being characterized in that it comprises: a mast stand (82) ; at least one arm (12) pivotally mounted on the mast stand (82) and carrying at least one antenna (66); and means for locking the arm in a position in which the antenna(s) is/are in a high position (figure 9); the arm (12) being suitable, when the locking means are disengaged, for being tilted about its pivot axis to a position in which at least one antenna is at height enabling it to be worked on by an operative at the foot of the mast. Figure 9 shows a platform comprising a relay antenna mast and a protective guard rail . The antenna mast and the guard rail are carried on the top of a building.
